

Objectives

FBRH 2-day GRI Standards Certified and IEMA approved Course

At the end of this course we are very confident that all participants will:

FIRST CLASS

GRI STANDARDS
SUSTAINABILITY REPORT

1

Have the knowledge to prepare ASAP a first class sustainability report that is in accordance with the GRI Standards. A report, that cannot be seen as a greenwash. You will confidently navigate to find all required information and take action, so as to operate in the much cleverer sustainable ways. We all need to implement positive change and limit our negative impacts on the environment, the economies and the societies on which we rely for growth and profit.

Understand that a first class sustainability report will provide a solid foundation

a) for good communication. We are in the information age. Whether you are aware of it or not, conversations could be taking place about your company and people take action and make choices based on what information they have available.

b) for companies to succeed in the long term by building and maintaining favourable reputations and relationships with key stakeholders. Your responsibly prepared CSR/ Sustainability report becomes a valuable source of information and a reference for your company to demonstrate that it is already taking action through a methodical and structured approach – and that it does not leave anything to chance.

Companies need to be part of the "Green economy" to survive in the long term

They are competing for capital, resources, business and talent.

They are increasingly judged by important stakeholders that can hold them back or stop them from reaching their objectives:

3

Have the tools for continuous improvement.

How do you assess and benchmark so you can continuously improve the quality and content of your report?

4

Demonstrate to others why a sustainability report is not a nice-to-have but a must-have. A first class sustainability report helps a company take the right sustainability decisions for its own benefit and for its stakeholders.

Understand the actions you can take to accelerate positive change.

How you can take solid action and leverage your strengths, to clear your value chain from bad practices.

Take positive action. ²
Be positive change.
